BAE Systems teamed up with Operation Homefront for its second annual Easter basket giveaway to provide Easter baskets to military families and children throughout southeast Michigan.

With donations provided by the public through local Dollar Tree stores, BAE Systems' employees volunteered their time to put together over 200 Easter baskets. The program is part of BAE's corporate-wide initiative to encourage employee involvement in charitable activities such as fundraising, volunteering and donating to BAE Systems' partner charities.

"BAE Systems' company-wide Charity Challenge program is just one of our many community involvement initiatives that allow us to give back to the community," said Joe McCarthy, vice president and general manager of Heavy Brigade Combat Team Systems for BAE Systems. "Our partnership with Operation Homefront enables us to provide our military personnel, their families and children with support in a variety of areas, and lift their spirits when someone they love is deployed."
